Weather Discussion:

The Atlantic high pressure system is dominant and would maintain relatively fair weather conditions across our islands as Monday closes. Meanwhile, unstable conditions could allow for a few showers and possible isolated thunderstorms along Tuesday evening. Fair conditions are anticipated along Wednesday, whereas occasionally cloudy conditions with some showers are likely on Thursday.

Gentle to moderate (~15-25 km/h) east south easterly to east north-easterly trades are crossing our islands. A temporary decrease (<20 km/h) is expected on Tuesday along with a change in direction to east north easterly. Seas are slight to moderate in open water in open water with swells ranging between 1.0m and 1.8m. Saharan dust haze concentrations will thin out by Tuesday and may not be noticeable for the remainder of this forecast period.
